ATM RAM-RAID GANG HUNTED BY POLICE

JCB digger used to rip out cashpoint, latest in spate of similar crimes

star@hertssexnews.co.uk

A CASH machine containing a five-figure sum was ripped from the wall of a shop in Harlow during a ram-raid that police are linking to two others.

The gang used a stolen JCB digger to remove the ATM from Martins newsagent in Prentice Place at Potter Street shortly before 1.45am on Saturday.

Detectives from the Kent and Essex Serious Crime Directorate say the incident is linked with the ram-raid at McColl's newsagent in Roydon two weeks ago and the theft of an ATM containing a five-figure sum from The Food Store in The Chase, Harlow, in August.

In the latest incident, the JCB digger was used to remove an ATM from the outside wall of Martins. It was loaded onto a waiting van which left the scene with a red car, believed to be an Audi.

Scene

Up to eight people are thought to have been involved in the theft. The JCB, which police later confirmed had been stolen, was left at the scene. A window of a red Kia Cee'd parked nearby was smashed.

It followed an incident when a forklift truck was driven through the front of McColl's in High Street, Roydon, in the early hours of Wednesday, September 16.

On that occasion the gang used the forklift to remove an ATM from the wall and load it on to a red Hilux pick-up truck.

The truck and cash machine were found abandoned near a cricket ground and allotments in Occupation Lane at 2.50am and a white Kia Sportage car was found nearby. The pick-up, car and forklift truck had all been stolen in the previous 48 hours.

Plans to increase junction capacity

M11 improvements part of £2bn programme

Gemma Gardner

gemma.gardner@hertsessexnews.co.uk

PROPOSALS to increase capacity at the junction of the M11 at Harlow are included in a six-year plan for road improvements across the region.

The £2bn programme unveiled this week will be carried out by Highways England, which is responsible for country's motorways and major A roads.

As well as improvements at junction 7 of the M11, there are plans to upgrade technology on the stretch of the motorway from Bishop's Stortford (junction 8) to Cambridge (junction 14).

It will include the installation of emergency roadside phones, signals on slip roads, incident detection and automatic signalling, variable message signs, CCTV cameras and gantries. The work will be carried out in three phases between now and 2021.

It is part of the Government's roads strategy – first announced last year – to triple levels of spending on England's roads by the end of the decade.

As well as the M11, the East of England programme also includes major upgrades on the A5 and M1, A1(M), A12, A14, A47 and A428 as well as the M11.

Roads minister Andrew Jones described the programme as the biggest investment in roads in a generation. "The £2bn investment will significantly improve journeys and help create jobs," he said.

Ken Simmonds, Highway England's director of major projects in the south and east, added: "These improvements will bring significant long-term benefits to road users on motorways and major A roads in the East of England, as well as to local residents and the economy as a whole."

"They will create vital links at local, regional and national level to unlock growth, increase capacity and tackle congestion.

"We'll look to deliver these schemes with local communities in mind, using designated funds where relevant to address environmental issues and air quality. The construction work will, of course, bring some disruption in the short term but we will ensure that we keep this to a minimum to keep traffic flowing."

Catherine Brookes, Highways England divisional director said: "It's vital that we continue to improve the existing road network."

"We'll be spending more than £81m this year alone on maintenance and smaller-scale improvement schemes. And because our roads aren't just about cars and lorries, we're also investing £4m in the east to improve facilities for cyclists."

Loud music lands noisy neighbour with £2,300 bill

A NOISY neighbour's audio equipment has been seized after he breached a noise abatement notice.

Robert Goodchild, of Felmongers, Harlow, was also ordered to pay £2,309.62 in fines, court costs and a victim surcharge.

Chelmsford Magistrates Court was told Goodchild was served with a noise abatement notice by Harlow Council on February 23 but complaints from neighbours continued.

On July 10 a council officer heard loud music being played at 7.40pm and again shortly before midnight. The officer returned two days later at about 10pm and again heard loud music.

As a result, the council's environmental health team applied to the court for a warrant to enter the premises and remove all noise-making equipment.

The warrant was executed on July 20 by environmental health and police officers. Legal proceedings were also started for the breach of the abatement notice and an application for a forfeiture order was made.

Goodchild was found guilty in his absence on September 10. He was fined a total of £1,000 for the three noise offences and ordered to pay costs of £1,119.62, a victim surcharge of £40 and court costs of £150.

Councillor Mark Wilkinson, portfolio holder for environment at Harlow Council, said afterwards: "It's unfortunate that legal action has had to be taken as we do try to resolve noise complaints informally where possible."

"However, as community leaders we must help maintain a safe, healthy environment for our residents and those visiting town. This includes ensuring that noise doesn't cause distress."

Police hunt ram-raiders who drove JCB at shop

Although the ATM was damaged, the five-figure sum of cash inside remained intact and detectives believe the thieves abandoned plans to break it open because it was bigger than expected.

Detectives are also investigating the theft of an ATM containing a five figure sum of cash from The Food Store in The Chase, Harlow.

A red Mitsubishi Shogun was reversed into the shutters at about 3.15am on Friday, August 28, causing substantial damage to the shop premises. The vehicle was left at the scene and seized for forensic examination.

DCI Stuart Smith, of the Kent and Essex Serious Crime Directorate, said: "We now believe all three thefts are linked and we are carrying out extensive enquiries to find out who is responsible and bring them to justice."

"There have been a number of similar incidents across the eastern region and we are working closely with our colleagues in the Eastern Region Special Operations Unit."

Forklift

"As well as appealing for anyone with information to come forward, I would also particularly ask people such as taxi drivers and lorry drivers who are out on the road late at night or in the early hours of the morning to be on the lookout for forklift trucks, telehandlers and similar vehicles being driven around."

"It is unusual for this type of machinery to be on public roads at these times."

"I would also urge farmers and construction workers to make sure their vehicles are stored securely and ideally fitted with tracking devices."

Anyone with information about the ongoing police investigation into the three thefts is asked to call the Serious and Organised Crime Unit on 101. Alternatively, they can contact Crimestoppers anonymously on 0800 555111 or www.crimestoppers-uk.org.

Water leak not fixed two weeks after reporting

A DISGRUNTLED resident has blasted a water company's failure to fix a leak outside his home after nearly two weeks.

A large pool of water has now appeared at the back of William Harris' home in Lodge Hall, Harlow.

Mr Harris, 50, reported the incident to Affinity Water on September 20. However, he said the company had so far failed to solve the problem or give him a date for when it would be fixed.

"It has been more than a week and the situation is still the same," he said.

"Water is gushing out along the path and down the kerb 24 hours a day, seven days a week.

"We're always being told how we've got to save water, but maybe Affinity think differently. It must have lost thousands of gallons and it

WATER WASTE:
William Harris has reported the leak earlier this month is all a bit of a pain."

This week the company said work to repair the leak would start next Wednesday (October 7).

A spokesman said: "A technician investigated the site on September 21 and determined that to repair the leak safely, our teams would need to install three-way traffic lights.

"We require a permit from the local highways agency to install the traffic lights and we anticipate these will be set up on Wednesday which will enable our technicians to begin repairs."

Parties in war of words during race row debate

Fallout after abuse of councillor who supported travellers

Gemma Gardner

gemma.gardner@hertsexsexnews.co.uk

A ROW is threatening to divide Harlow Council after a Labour councillor used the n-word during a motion calling for support of a racially abused colleague.

The motion was introduced by councillor Danny Purton who, during his speech, quoted a Conservative Party leaflet "from some decades ago" which, he said, stated "If you want a n****r for a neighbour, vote Labour".

"I'm asking all those in this chamber to support this motion to defend the right of councillors and others to speak their mind without becoming a target of violent racial threats," said Mr Purton.

The motion called on the authority to condemn the "racist language and incitement to aggression" aimed at councillor Wanda Forman by leaders of a campaign against travellers. It also called on the council to offer "full support" to any councillor "coming under such attacks".

The motion continued: "We call on all local political leaders to disassociate their organisations from those indulging in discriminatory rhetoric that only serves as cover for such racist attitudes."

Cllr Forman had been the subject of racial abuse on social media after she voiced her support for travellers.

Speak ahead of the meeting, council leader Jon Clempner said: "I was shocked to hear of the abusive and racist remarks directed to Cllr Forman on social media and I condemn them in the strongest terms."

Conservative and Ukip councillors came under fire for "whipping up community ill-feeling" over illegal traveller sites to make a political point.

Those accusations were rejected by both parties, with Conservatives saying the claims were out of order and had led to a "breakdown in this chamber".

Conservative group leader Cllr Andrew Johnson said he was shocked by the accusations and would look to see if any action was necessary. Deputy leader Cllr Joel Charles added: "This debate should be about kicking out racism. Racism has no place in Harlow."

The motion was passed.

Man cleared of double rape after prosecutors rule out retrial

A YOUNG man accused of carrying out the double rape of a 14-year-old girl in a garage in Harlow was this week formally cleared of both charges.

Reece Bishop, 19, of Manor Road, Harlow, had faced a two-week wait to hear if the Crown Prosecution Service would seek a retrial after the jury at his trial failed to reach verdicts on both charges.

But on Monday his wait was over after CPS barrister Diana Piggott told judge Anthony Goldstaub at Chelmsford Crown Court that no evidence was being offered after the complainant said she did not want to give evidence.

Formally recording not guilty verdicts in respect of both charges, the judge discharged the defendant, who was not present for the hearing.

"The case was tried before and the jury was unable to agree," said the judge. "I gave you [the Crown Prosecution Service] time to consider a retrial and you've decided no evidence will be offered."

During the trial Mr Bishop's legal representative, Neil Fitzgibbon, told the jury there was an enormous lack of evidence in the case.

Mr Bishop denied two offences of rape which were alleged to have taken place on February 16. He said he was with his girlfriend during the afternoon of the alleged offences.

Closure turns into a farce

SIR I'm sure I can't be alone in being amused to read your report on the former Passmore School site being reopened as a secondary school (Star, September 24).

What will they call the new school I wonder. May I make a suggestion? They could name it Brays Grove. If so, we would have Passmore School in Brays Grove and Brays Grove School in Passmore. All this accomplished in no more than seven years!

Doubtless these days the new school will dubbed an academy; it sounds so much more impressive!

I recall that some people cautioned at the time that closing Brays Grove was a mistake but what did they know?

I'm put in mind of that old saying that history repeats itself, first as tragedy and then as farce.

John Forster
Park Mead, Harlow

SIR I can't believe that Passmore School – the original – is going to be a school again.

It was closed as "a small village in the London Metro newspaper on September 22."

Moirá Curry
Old Orchard, Harlow

Heartened by labs decision

SIR I would like, through the Star, to praise the great news that Public Health England is moving to Harlow and the efforts of MP Robert Halfon and Harlow Council, who played a pivotal role.

When I first arrived in Harlow in 1997 the town was a thriving metropolis of large employers such as GlaxoSmithKline, Pitney Bowes, Merck Sharpe & Dome and many others. Over the past 10 years we have seen a gradual decline in employers and high value jobs and this has concerned me greatly.

However, I have been heartened by the recent announcement of Public Health England and the news about the Harlow Enterprise Zone and the re-development activity at the Nortel site which will produce one of the finest science parks in the UK. Well done all.

Take control of diabetes

SIR Diabetes UK wants to hear from people with diabetes who would like to talk about their experiences of attending a diabetes education course.

Diabetes is a life-long condition and one that requires constant management. People with diabetes are also responsible for the vast majority of their own care so understanding their condition is vital.

Diabetes education courses such as DAFNE, DESMOND and X-Pert help give people the skills and confidence they need to take control of their diabetes.

We know that attending a diabetes education course can be life-changing which is why we want to make sure more people go on the courses.

If you have attended a diabetes education course then we would like to hear from you about how it helped you. If you would like to share your story, please e-mail us on CommsPlanning@diabetes.org.uk.

We look forward to hearing from you.

Small village within town

SIR I was intrigued to read a 'homes for sale' article in the London Metro newspaper on September 22.

It featured a property at Newhall in Harlow which was described as "a small village in Essex three miles from Harlow".

It even included a decent 16th century pub called the Queen's Head.

I learn something new every day.

Roundabout a waste of cash

SIR Does Essex County Council's highways department honestly think it has solved, or even relieved, the traffic chaos with the fancy new roundabout at Harlow Town station?

I, and probably hundreds more, can assure them they haven't. After spending millions, the traffic now is no different, if not worse.

Now we have a pedestrian crossing right on the roundabout and the silly filter road from Pinnacles which does nothing but make matters worse.

The roundabout is gridlocked every morning and evening and this will not be solved until the A414 from the station roundabout to Eastwick is widened, as everyone will say. It is as simple as that.

What this town needs are duel carriageways, especially the A414 which is duel carriageway up to Eastwick and then, unbelievably, goes through a retail and industrial park as a single carriageway up to Southern Way.

Stevenage, in contrast, has duel carriageways on their through roads so why haven't we? Probably because it is in Hertfordshire and we are in Essex.

The road infrastructure in a town of this size is both a disgrace and a nightmare. I mean, look how long it took them to sort out the Southern Way/Tawneys Road nightmare. The other bottlenecked road, Second Avenue, was solved by turning the bus lane lights off.

People in planning earn a considerable amount of money and then can only come up with such ridiculous ideas.

Impressed by PAH service

SIR Today all we seem to hear is criticism of the NHS and stories of poor treatment, delays and cancelled operations, but I would like to take the opportunity to congratulate our hospital for the excellent treatment and service a friend received after suffering a compound fracture injury to his arm a week ago.

He broke his radius and ulna following a training accident on a Thursday evening. On arriving at the hospital he received an immediate assessment, an X-ray and was patched up before being admitted to a ward pending an operation.

Over the following weekend he was operated on and discharged on Sunday. He was back at school on the Tuesday after only missing two days.

Without such great treatment he could have missed out on so much indeed, yet just yesterday he played squash with his arm in a sling . . . and won!

Well done to all the staff at Princess Alexandra Hospital.

Steve Dodd
Belfield Gardens, Harlow

Exemplary treatment

SIR I am writing on behalf of my mother who was recently admitted to Harlow's Princess Alexandra Hospital with a worrying and, at the time, unknown condition.

After various tests, gallstones were diagnosed as the problem and these were efficiently removed.

The treatment she experienced was exemplary and she has asked me to write in support of the hospital staff.

She was treated with the utmost care, courtesy and consideration throughout her stay. She could not speak more highly of all the staff she encountered and I am writing to state how grateful she is – and indeed our whole family are – to them all.

We are aware that the NHS, and indeed the hospital itself, has suffered much criticism of late and it would be nice to see this letter published in an attempt to redress the balance.

MP takes first drive on new access road

HARLOW MP Robert Halfon was the first person to drive a new access road to the town's enterprise zone.

Wielding a giant pair of scissors, Mr Halfon cut a ribbon to declare the road, which will provide access to Kao Park from London Road, open.

Yesterday's (Wednesday) ceremony was attended by local dignitaries and representatives of the developers, contractors and businesses.

The event also marked the official announcement that Arrow Electronics and Raytheon UK have signed 15-year leases to take space in the development served by the road.

Firms sign lease deals for sites at enterprise zone

Expansion plans will provide job opportunities

William Mata

TWO international companies are expanding their operations by moving to the Harlow Enterprise Zone.

Following the recent announcement that Public Health England is to establish its national science hub in the town, the confirmation that two major businesses are to expand their presence is further good news for Harlow.

Technology and innovation business Raytheon and electronics company Arrow have both signed 15-year lease agreements to take space at Kao Park – the London Road South campus of the enterprise zone.

Raytheon is to move from its current location at Pinnacles and bring its entire UK research and development department to the enterprise zone as part of a £25m long-term investment to create its new UK Technical Centre of Excellence.

Having scaled down its presence in Harlow in recent years, with the re-location of manufacturing operations to Scotland, this will represent a significant expansion with jobs in Harlow growing from around 350 to around 500.

Raytheon UK chief executive Richard Daniel said: "This announcement marks a new era for Raytheon in Harlow, where the company has significantly contributed to the economy for more than 50 years.

"The new facility gives us tremendous potential and will become our main technology centre in the UK for the design and development of some of the UK's most advanced defence capabilities."

Arrow Electronics is a global provider of products, services and solutions to industrial and commercial users of electronic components and enterprise computing solutions.

The company already has premises on the site but is moving its operations to newer and larger location, taking about twice its current space.

Paul Nelson, vice-president of global real estate, said: "Arrow Electronics has a successful history of operations in Harlow which stretches back more than 40 years.

"Today it employs 250 people in Harlow, providing innovative services and solutions to electronics customers and suppliers in the UK and across Europe.

"The move to the new office will provide an excellent working environment for our business and talent to develop and grow."

Work started on the London Road south site in December 2014. This latest development will mean new potential for opportunities for employment and skills development for local people.

Councillor Tony Durcan, portfolio holder for regeneration and enterprise, said: "This is fantastic news for the enterprise zone, for Harlow as a whole, for Essex and for the whole of the UK in terms of inward investment.

"The fact that these two major international companies want to expand their UK operations in Harlow shows what a great place Harlow is to do business and the huge potential that is being fulfilled at the enterprise zone."

Harlow MP Robert Halfon hailed the multi-million pound investment from Raytheon and Arrow as "extraordinary", adding: "Everybody has worked very hard on this enterprise zone and now hundreds of jobs will be coming in.

"This is the beginning of a triangle of development taking in the enterprise zone, Public Health England building and the Charles Kao UTC.

"I will admit that at one point I was wondering whether this was actually going to get off the ground but developers [Goldacre Ventures have supported all the way through."

David Bloom, of Goldacre, added: "It is very exciting, we have been in this project for three years now. We have a date to open the business park on July 2016 and the data centre in quarter two."

Bus driver hit with penalty fine for using mobile phone

A BUS driver was issued with a £100 fixed penalty notice and given three points on his license after being filmed talking on his mobile phone while driving.

The Town Link driver was seen in the video with the phone to his ear as he drove along Epping High Street in June. The footage was recorded by Harlow cyclist Dave Sherry and posted on YouTube.

An Essex Police spokesman said: "I can confirm that, following a report from Mr Sherry, the bus driver did indeed receive a fixed penalty notice.

"Not every case like this is suitable for further action or even prosecution. However, when the circumstances allow we will take action."

Town Link declined to comment.

Town policing in the spotlight at public meeting

RESIDENTS are being the chance to have their say on policing in Harlow at a public meeting next week.

The meeting is an opportunity to raise crime and policing-related concerns with the Essex Police and Crime Commissioner Nick Alston and the Essex Police District Commander, Chief Inspector Alan Ray.

A briefing document on crime trends in Harlow will be made available shortly before the meeting, which takes place on Wednesday (October 7).

Members of the public can ask their questions of Mr Alston and Chief Inspector Alan Ray, who will speak about the actions being taken by officers to keep the area safe.

Safety

"I encourage everyone who lives in the Harlow area to come along to the meeting and raise the issues that matter to them around crime, policing and community safety," said Mr Alston. "If you care about keeping Harlow safe, please join us and be part of the debate."

The meeting, which is being held at the Harlow Study Centre at Netteswell-bury Farm in Waterhouse Moor, starts at 6.30pm.

People who do not want to raise issues or concerns publicly at the meeting can do so privately in a one-to-one surgery with Mr Alston before the meeting.

To ensure the smooth running of the surgeries, they will be run on an appointment-only basis. Anyone who would like to make an appointment to see the PCC in the late afternoon should contact his office directly on (01245) 291600 or use the online booking form on the PCC website at www.essex.pcc.police.uk/pcc-surgeries/

Teen saved my life after I fell in road

Jogger praises youngster who pulled him to safety

William Mata

william.mata@heretsexnews.co.uk

A MAN who collapsed in the road while out jogging says he owes his life to a teenager who pulled him to safety.

Bradley Tredinnick, 46, of Ladyshot, Harlow, was jogging home from work when he suddenly felt faint and fell to the floor, injuring his hands and face.

But Mr Tredinnick believes the quick-thinking of Kiya Morrison, 14, prevented the accident turning into a tragedy.

"I owe him my life," said Mr Tredinnick. "It could all have been so much worse."

"I was running and walking home from where I work in Staple Tye and as I turned into Momples Road I began to feel strange."

"I started to see these big blocks of colour and it was as if I was dreaming. I felt faint and cried out as I fell, putting my arms out in a frenzy."

"I didn't quite black out and I remember seeing this young boy with a scooter who grabbed me and pulled me out of the road."

Mr Tredinnick was taken to Princess Alexandra Hospital

GRATEFUL

Bradley Tredinnick with Kiya Morrison, who pulled him to safety after he collapsed in the road. Inset, the injuries Mr Tredinnick suffered where he was treated for his injuries and released. He said doctors described the fall as a "freak sort of incident" caused by low sugar levels.

"I don't think I would be here without his help," said Mr Tredinnick. "Without his intervention and calling for help I don't know what might have happened."

Mr Tredinnick, a client sales representative, is almost fully recovered although he has not yet returned to work. "I still feel a bit shaky," he said.

He added: "Kids get a lot of bad press but I want to say thank you and I will get him a present. I want to thank the other people who helped, too. There were motorists who lay blankets over me. The spirit was fantastic."

Kiya's mother Nicole, 47, of Pennymead, said: "He is very caring. I'm proud of him, he's a good boy."

"He was on his way home from the Sir Charles Kao UTC where he is studying for his GCSEs when it happened."

"I responded and rang 999. The man offered to buy him a present, but his safety is all that matters to Kiya."

Gritting teams gear up for the worst of winter

GRITTING lorries and snowploughs are already out on the county's roads as Essex County Council prepares for the winter onslaught.

County Hall is planning a series of dry runs on key routes so that drivers are aware of any potential problems when bad weather arrives.

Rotas for gritting lorry drivers have been drawn up and stocks of road salt have been replenished at all county council depots.

The council currently has approximately 15,500 tonnes of salt in stock.

Cllr Eddie Johnson, cabinet member for highways maintenance and small scheme delivery, said: "The end of summer is a busy time planning for winter."

Problems

"Our gritter drivers will be out on the county's main roads to make sure they know the routes and are aware of any potential problems."

Winter officially begins for highways maintenance engineers on Monday, October 26, starting with a low-risk period before moving up a gear into high-risk season in December.

The fleet of more than 60 vehicles covers about 2,000 miles of Essex highways including all major traffic routes and selected A and B roads. It uses around 200 tonnes of salt on each run, with each route on its salting network being treatable in a maximum of three hours.

Ambulance trust slashes the time taken to answer emergency calls

THE speed at which emergency 999 calls to the region's ambulance service are answered has improved by almost 20 seconds as a result of improvements in communications and systems.

Government figures for July show that 95 per cent of calls were picked up in five seconds compared to 23 seconds in September 2014.

In 2014/15 the East of England Ambulance Service, which covers Essex and five other counties and runs control rooms in Bedford, Chelmsford and Norwich employing more than 150 call handlers, received 964,917 calls, a rise of almost six per cent on the previous year.

Gary Morgan, head of emergency operations centres for the East of England Ambulance Service Trust, said the introduction of a more intelligent system for ensuring 999 calls are picked up coupled with the hard work of handler teams to respond as quickly as possible was the reason for the improvement.

"It used to be that if a call couldn't be picked up because every call handler in one control room was busy, that caller would have to wait," he said. "But since we introduced a regional telephony system last autumn, 999 calls automatically switch over to another control room if they can't be answered immediately in the local centre. That way we increase the chances of the call being picked up within just a few seconds."

Monitor

In April 2011 the Department of Health introduced a system to monitor how quickly all 999 calls received by ambulance services were answered. The results are published in the form of Ambulance Clinical Quality Indicators.

"Our call handlers are doing everything they can to meet high standards, which can be difficult in a pressurised environment like a control room," said Mr Morgan. "It's not just the control teams; our IT department were integral in the telephony system implementation so it's been a real team effort to make these improvements."

He added: "The clock is ticking with every 999 call as callers need really quick reassurance and help in a real emergency. For instance, our call handlers are able to provide cardiopulmonary resuscitation (CPR) guidance over the phone which can make a massive difference to patient outcome."

"They also play a key role in identifying the patient's location and problem so we can dispatch the right resource quickly. We are also improving capacity by recruitment of more people to the role."

Fashion designer Claire prepares for London show

THE work of a fashion designer from Old Harlow will grace the catwalk at a major show in London later this month. Designs by former Mark Hall Academy and Harlow College student Claire Couchman will feature alongside those of some of the fashion industry's top names.

Claire, who is from Old Harlow, was inspired by 1920s-era fairs and circuses for her designs.

After leaving Harlow College, Claire studied men's tailoring at Brighton University. She then set up a business designing and making clothing under the brand CouchmanBespoke.

Operating under a sustainable future ethos, Claire sources all her materials from organic and sustainable sources.

Her latest designs for both men and women will feature in the show at the St Pancras Hotel on Saturday, October 31.

Call-in is 'delaying tactic' fumes leader

Kier decision could face further scrutiny over cost

Gemma Gardner

gemma.gardner@hertsessexnews.co.uk

A PLAN to transfer the running of housing and environmental maintenance services to a new council-owned company could come under further scrutiny.

Conservatives have forced Harlow Council to hold a special meeting on Wednesday, saying the decision to end the contract with Kier Harlow was "putting the cart before the horse".

They want assurances over the length of the new contract, the cost of recruiting more council staff, and how the company will be managed.

But the ruling Labour group say the move is a delaying tactic to make a political point.

Opposition deputy leader Joel Charles said in a letter asking for the decision to be called in: "There is an absolute lack of certainty over any of the operational aspects of the proposed option.

"By taking this decision now, the council is putting the cart before the horse, agreeing to something without knowing how it will work and how much it will all cost."

"We believe that the decision should be overturned, an extension to the existing contract sought and the services be put out to competitive tender ensuring full transparency over value for money and some certainty for the provider," he added.

In-house

A decision to bring the services, currently provided by Kier, back in-house in 2017 was made by the cabinet earlier this month.

Labour say the move will save money and give them the flexibility they need to meet any future financial challenges it may face.

They say the cost of services are expected to be paid for within existing budgets at no extra cost to the taxpayer.

Wednesday's meeting will decide if the decision requires further examination or if no further action should be taken. The decision can be sent back to the cabinet for reconsideration and/or separately to the scrutiny committee.

Council leader Jon Clempner slammed the Tories for calling-in the plan and said: "It is simply a delaying tactic to make a political point."

"I am only interested in an objective assessment, what is right for Harlow."

Speaking prior to the call-in, Cllr Clempner said: "An options appraisal carried out by the council included independent reports by consultants as part of looking at the best way of providing these services in the future."

The meeting will be held at Harlow Council on Wednesday at 7.30pm. Full details and the agenda can be found on the authority's website at www.harlow.gov.uk.

In brief

Councillor cleared of wrongdoing over vote

HARLOW: An investigation into claims of bias against a council committee chairman has cleared him of any wrongdoing.

The probe was launched after members of the public complained that Cllr Phil Waite used his casting vote to grant permission for the minicab firm for which he used to work to open a new 24-hour office at Mill Court opposite Harlow Town station.

One resident who attended the at the meeting of the council's development management committee, of which Cllr Waite is chairman, said she felt "cheated" after the vote went in favour of the cab firm.

Cllr Waite did not declare he used to work for the firm but when challenged during the meeting he admitted that was the case.

However, he insisted that would not influence how he voted on the proposal.

The application was approved by three votes to two.

A Harlow Council spokesman said this week: "The council carried out an investigation and has responded to all known complainants in writing. This investigation is now complete."

Man appears in court on bus theft charge

HARLOW: A man has been charged with taking a vehicle without consent after a bus was stolen from the town centre terminus on Sunday evening.

The single decker bus crashed into railings in Velizy Avenue after being taken from Terminus Street shortly after 9pm.

David Shurrock, 24, of no fixed abode, appeared at Chelmsford Magistrates Court on Wednesday when the case was adjourned.

Six arrested in police crackdown on crime

ESSEX: More than 100 vehicles were stopped during a police operation to catch drivers committing motoring offences or wanted for other crimes.

Detectives and uniformed officers from both the Essex and Kent forces took part in the operation last Thursday.

Six people were arrested on suspicion of various offences including theft, dangerous driving and possession of drugs.

Hospice must be ready to embrace opportunities says new director of patient care

THE future of St Clare Hospice will be to take on a bigger role in the wider community, according to its new director of patient care.

Phillip Ball said the hospice must be ready to embrace opportunities and ensure the services it provides become "beacons of specialist, person-centred care".

He said enabling people to flourish even as their lives are coming to an end was at the heart of the role the hospice plays in caring for those with a terminal or life-limiting illness.

"In future St Clare will be heading towards a bigger role in the wider community and we will need to continue our efforts to reach those who need support in places that are familiar and safe to them," he added.

Dad-of-two Mr Ball worked in the retail and catering industries before embarking on a career in healthcare in 1978 after a friend at work said she thought he would make a good nurse.

"I trained in Edgware and almost immediately recognised working with those nearing the end of life was what I wanted to do," he said.

"With a view to working in a hospice at some point, I began my nursing in general hospitals until eventually the opportunity arose to join a hospice team, moving to Willen Hospice at Milton Keynes in 1991.

"Since then I have worked in almost every role, from staff nurse to inpatient unit manager, as well as setting up a hospital palliative care team at Northampton General Hospital in 1993."

PHILLIP BALL: "In future, St Clare will be heading towards a bigger role in the wider community"

Mr Ball, who is also a special advisor to the Care Quality Commission, joins St Clare from Sue Ryder's Clinical Quality Team where he ran the charity's Thorpe Hall Hospice in Peterborough since 2009.

He succeeds Beth Burton, who has left to become manager of a nursing home in Shenfield where she will be using her clinical expertise to set up a nursing wing for palliative care patients.

Boat firm's £25,000 donation to cancer trials unit

TWO women who have survived breast cancer were presented with a cheque for £25,000 for the clinical trials unit at Harlow's Princess Alexandra Hospital and St Margaret's Hospital in Epping.

Amanda Barr, from Sawbridgeworth, and Gill Gammage, from Elsenham, travelled to the Southampton Boat Show to receive the donation from shipping providers Peters & May.

The money will enable the unit to appoint an additional research nurse to support its existing team of five.

Hairdresser Amanda, who was given the all-clear eight years after being diagnosed, said: "As former patients and keen fundraisers, Gill and I sit on the Breast Cancer Clinical Trials advisory board along with David Holley, the chief executive of Peters & May.

"Not only has it raised a lot of money, it's also raised the profile of our cause worldwide."

Consultant Ashraf Patel, associate specialist for the unit, said: "This will help us take part in some more breast cancer clinical trials for the benefit of our patients."

Mr Holley added: "Unfortunately my mother passed away with breast cancer so this is a cause close to my heart. It's not just raising money but raising awareness."

The unit treats patients from West Essex and East Herts. In addition to clinical trials, charitable funds have helped establish a family history clinic, a bone health clinic, the Fabulous and Beautiful programme for women living with cancer and a reflexology clinic.

Support for patients with alcohol issues

Run raises funds to tackle liver disease

Gemma Gardner

gemma.gardner@hertsexnews.co.uk

A CLINIC to reduce the number people with alcohol-related problems repeatedly returning to hospital has been launched.

A recent survey found almost a quarter of inpatients at Harlow's Princess Alexandra Hospital were suffering from alcohol-related issues.

Consultant gastroenterologist Dr Deb Ghosh has launched a new clinic to follow up patients admitted with alcohol problems in the hope that prompt intervention will lead to a decrease in re-admissions.

"In fact 12 per cent of all acute admission to hospital have alcohol-related issues," he said.

"Deaths in people under 65 from liver disease have been rising at an alarming rate and our current lifestyles, including drinking alcohol, have contributed to this sharp increase."

Dr Ghosh has teamed up with Harlow charity ADAS, who support people with drinking problems, to offer patients ongoing help to patients once they are released from hospital.

The alcohol team is made up of Dr Ghosh, two ADAS counsellors, who already work in the A&E department, and an alcohol liaison nurse.

Jane Brown and Jane McSweeney are ADAS counsellors working in A&E, talking to people while they wait to be seen.

Drinking

"We screen as many people as possible while they are in A&E by asking three simple questions around drinking," said Ms Brown.

"People often don't realise just how much they are drinking or how much is too much," added Ms McSweeney.

Liver disease is a major cause of death in the UK and deaths from alcoholic liver disease have doubled in the past 10 years.

Gareth Clement, Chief Executive of ADAS, added: "Working more closely with Dr Ghosh and his team we can help people get their drinking under control.

"Essex County Council has launched a great tool to raise awareness of how much is too much, and help people monitor their alcohol use (<https://dontbottleup.org.uk>)."

On Sunday, Dr Ghosh and Mr Clement joined scores of supporters to take part in the first Long Live Liver family fun run at Harlow Showground. The event was launched to raise awareness of liver disease and help fund a fibro-scanner.

The event started with a warm-up from Manor of Groves Hotel fitness instructor Daniel Ratcliffe before participants chose a 2km, 5km or 10km route.

There were also a number of stalls at the start/finish point.

Dr Ghosh said: "We are delighted that so many people chose to support our inaugural fun run. Deaths from liver disease are preventable and I hope this event goes some way to demonstrating to people how important their health and wellbeing are."

The run was organised by Dr Ghosh and the alcohol team at PAH.

Safety advice is a winter warning from fire service

AS summer days turn into autumn nights, county fire chiefs have offered safety advice to householders.

The number of incidents caused by faulty central heating boilers, open fires, candles, heaters and electric blankets increases at this time of year, according to Essex Fire and Rescue Service.

"Summer is over and autumn is now here so it's the perfect time to make sure your heating system and chimney are in good order before you start to use them for the winter," said divisional officer Neil Fenwick. "It is also the perfect time to test your smoke alarms and carbon monoxide detectors."

With heating systems being fired up for the first time in months, now is the time to ensure boilers are safe by getting them serviced by a Gas Safe registered engineer. Poorly maintained gas boilers not only represent a fire risk but can also cause carbon monoxide poisoning.

Extinguished

Candles should never be placed on a flammable surface, left unattended, extinguished before they burn into the holder and kept away from windows and curtains.

Heaters should always be positioned with their backs to the wall and, where possible, secure to prevent them from falling over. Portable gas heaters should have the cylinders stored and changed outside or in a well ventilated area.

All electric blankets should be checked and any blanket that is more than 10 years-old or shows any sign of wear and tear should be replaced.

All electric blankets should carry the British Standard Kitemark and the BEAB symbol on them.

"By taking a few simple precautions now you can make sure that you and your family enjoy a safe and cosy autumn and winter," added Mr Fenwick.

CREAM OF THE CROP: Allotment holders in Epping Green

Allotment 'one of best'

A COMMUNITY allotment in Epping Green has been ranked one of the best in Britain.

Started just two years ago by Rev Paul Walker, the allotment made the shortlist to be named Britain's Best Allotment.

Chelsea Flower Show winner Lucy Summers was among those judging the allotment, which this year has produced crops of potatoes, runner beans, onions and spinach.

Although the patch did not win an award, volunteer Valarie Foster, of High Wych Road, Sawbridgeworth, said she was amazed the allotment was shortlisted.

"It was very exciting and I'm thrilled for all the people who are involved," she said. "The allotment is valued by many."

"I could not believe we were nominated," she added. "We love the allotment and it's a good thing for the community."

Ex-sports club chairman on trial for fraud

Accused of writing unauthorised cheques

Court Reporter

star@hertssexnews.co.uk

A FORMER chairman of Harlow Athletic Club appeared in court this week accused of defrauding the club out of more than £6,500.

Alex Steel, 52, of The Hoo, Harlow, is alleged to have written 14 unauthorised cheques between 2009 and 2011.

A jury at Chelmsford Crown Court was told 11 of the cheques were made out to himself, two to a Miss T. Shaw and one to J. Steel.

Steel pleads not guilty to 14 offences of fraud by false representations involving cheques for sums of money ranging from £43.96 to £950 between March 24, 2009 and December 8, 2011. The total amount involved was £6,597.

Matthew Morgan, prosecuting, said Steel was chairman of the club from 2009 to 2011. When the offences came to light in January 2012 the club secretary reported the matter to police.

Inquiries with the club's bank showed that instead of the £7,000-£8,000 that should have been in its account there was only about £1,000.

Mr Morgan said that when Steel left the club at the end of 2011 he took with him cheque books.

Cashed cheques had been paid into his personal bank account and in the case of two made out to Miss Shaw, the defendant's account was credited with the money.

The court was told club cheques needed two signatures and it was claimed Steel asked committee members or the treasurer to countersign them in advance.

Mr Morgan said Harlow Athletic Club, founded in 1961, was run by volunteers and all management positions were unpaid. Its constitution prohibited any member from benefiting financially for work they did or from receiving any gifts.

"There was no reason for Steel to write cheques out to himself," he said. "He certainly didn't have permission to write them."

When interviewed by police in December 2012, Steel said that three years earlier he had set up another club called Harlow Athletics Club using his own money and he had used the cheques to pay himself a wage.

However, the prosecution said there was no record of any such club being incorporated with the sport's governing bodies such as England Athletics or UK Athletics, nor was any reference to it documented in the club minutes.

"Steel sought to muddy the distinction between Harlow Athletic Club and Harlow Athletics Club in his interview," added Mr Morgan. "Maybe some internal politics were around at this time but Steel left the club and he had simply written out cheques on the club's account to himself and those around him."

The trial continues.

Rapid response teams get to the HART of a crisis

Reporter Michael Jarvis spends a day with the East of England Ambulance Service's Hazardous Area Response Team

MY day at the Hazard Area Response Team base in Notley was one of the most fulfilling and insightful I've had as a reporter.

When we write about emergency incidents requiring the ambulance service, the fact a HART crew has been sent to the scene is often slipped into reports without a great deal of thought.

I'd always presumed it was a specialist group, but I envisaged a single vehicle and maybe a handful of paramedics with some advanced equipment.

Almost immediately after arriving at the HART base, I realised there was far more to the unit.

The day began at 6.30am with an equipment check. While everything may have been ready and in working order, the minutes and the hours ticked by with no calls.

At around 11am, two medics, Sarah Ford and Dan Gray, took part in a training drill. It saw them move through a narrow, makeshift shaft to reach a dummy casualty, before pulling it back through to safety.

The exercise was cut short by the first call of the day. A woman in her 80s had taken a fall on an upper floor of a care home in Chelmsford, suffering a suspected broken hip.

One of the main reasons HART crews are called to incidents like these is that they have MIBS (Multi-Integrated Bodysplint Stretchers) available to them. They are more flexible than standard stretchers, in terms of rounding corners and manoeuvring.

Indeed, the stretcher came into its own at the care home, utilised to carry the woman down multiple flights of narrow stairs.

At around 2.45pm, the only other call of the day came in. It was for a house fire in Brentwood, where persons were reported as trapped. We were stood down en route, however, which happens often due to situations settling during the time it takes for HART vehicles to reach locations.

In between the calls, I got some first-hand experience of the conditions HART medics are trained to deal with.

Firstly, I put some protective gear on and crawled through the makeshift shaft. I play football and think of myself as generally quite a fit person, and so expected the test to be relatively easy.

It proved so, but I was then told to move myself back through without turning round.

It was when I got to a gap in the shaft which, any smaller, would not have been big enough to get through, that I suddenly realised just how hard this would be with bags of equipment and a person on a stretcher – a fact reinforced by the sweat pouring off me.

I then wore a powered respirator protective suit, which looks like the big puffy suits worn by bomb technicians, and was asked to carry out a series of everyday tasks such as zipping up bags and making cups of tea.

The point was to test how the suit affected my dexterity. All of the tasks took longer than usual to complete and peeling the seal of a milk sachet proved impossible.

It dawned on me that the people ordinarily wearing these suits might have to perform precise clinical skills in life-or-death situations.

The exercises together made me realise why HART crews can be waiting all day for a call. Their skills are so well developed, situations that require them rarely happen.

God forbid, I will never be involved in an incident serious enough to require a HART crew but, should I be, I would find some comfort in knowing that I could not be in better hands.

Expertise developed in wake of atrocity

EMERGENCY services came under heavy criticism – the brunt of which was borne by the London Ambulance Service – after the 7/7 bombings in 2005.

The terrorist attacks claimed the lives of 52 people and more than were injured. Many felt the victims' chances of survival were reduced by a "comprehensively overwhelmed" LAS.

Ambulance crews could not relay messages to controllers because radio channels were blocked and, due to the unprecedented nature of the incident, getting back-up medical equipment to scenes was also a problem.

Those issues made the introduction of hazardous area response teams all the more important. Today there are 15 across the country. The East of England Ambulance Service NHS Trust has two, – one based at Notley in Essex and the other at Melbourn, Cambridgeshire.

The service was piloted in London and Yorkshire in 2007 and rolled out nationally a year later. EEAST began training its staff in 2009 and specialist crews started working in the region in 2010.

HART members are former frontline paramedics who have been given specialist training to deal with incidents involving ballistics, heights and water, among other things.

In brief

Former College man makes contest final

HARLOW: A former Harlow College student has reached the final of a national competition celebrating the outstanding achievements of young people.

Nishall Garala, 19, who founded the online Big Up Harlow campaign to promote the town, is one of three shortlisted for the final of Association of Colleges' Students of the Year Award 2015. Nishall was a member of Harlow Youth Council and also represented Waterhouse Moor Residents' Association while raising the profile of Hinduism in the town.

He is now studying at university but his legacy has been well received through Harlow and AoCS president John Widdowson praised his "determination and spirit".

The award will be presented to the winner on Wednesday, November 18.

Open day delights

HARLOW: Parents were able to experience yoga, enjoy a play and take part in various art activities at a nursery open day.

Kiddi Caru, in Kiln Lane, Harlow, opened its doors last week. Visitors were also treated to a meal of Mexican chicken with potato wedges and green salad followed by trifle.

Nursery manager Vania Farinha said: "Our door is always open to parents but we like to have special days when parents can come in and get a real feel for Kiddi Caru."

"Prospective parents are always welcome to come and join the fun."

Bishop performs official opening of school extension

William Mata

william.mata@hertsexnews.co.uk

A SCHOOL extension which will allow it to double the number of pupils it can accommodate has been blessed by the Bishop of Brentwood during an official opening ceremony.

Holy Cross Catholic Primary Academy, in Traces Road, Harlow, will now welcome an additional 60 new pupils at the end of every September.

Last month was the first it was able to accept a two-form entry for reception-age children.

The bishop, the Rt Rev Alan Williams, joined Harlow Council chairman Tony Hall and invited guests at the ribbon-cutting ceremony.

The new block, which contains seven new classrooms, a cooking room and a music room, was completed over summer in time for the start of the 2015-16 school year.

Holy Cross will now be able to cater for 420 pupils to meet the growing demand for primary places.

Sue McGuigan, head teacher at Holy Cross, said: "There is a real shortage of primary school spaces in Harlow.

"Here at Holy Cross we are oversubscribed year on year. With the expansion, we will be able to offer more places to those who require it."

"It will mean we will not have very long waiting lists."

The school will not be changing its admissions criteria and is keen to continue its strong links with the church.

School says thanks for Lego bricks

LEGO isn't just a fun toy but also a useful therapy aid pupils at a Harlow primary school are using to build social skills.

Freshwaters Primary Academy, in School Lane, received a donation of the plastic building bricks and pupils have been using them in group work.

During the sessions the children take on roles of architects, builders and supplies to act out real-life situations.

The bricks were donated by the Danish manufacturers along with an instruction kit, giving the children ideas of how to develop their creations.

Freshwaters head Marios Solomonides thanked Lego for their "generous" donation.

Looking to the stars with new logo and motto

A PRIMARY school has taken on a new identity to mark its links with the Burnt Mill Co-operative Academy Trust.

Cooks Spinney has unveiled a new logo after being renamed Cooks Spinney Primary Academy.

The logo depicts hands reaching for the stars. The new motto which is shared with the RAF - Per ardua ad astra - highlights its mission to "travel through adversity to the stars".

Head of school Stuart Pope said: "Our new name and logo better represent the future of the school and where we are going."

"The motto says that no matter what is thrown at us in life, we continue and achieve whatever we want."

New school jumpers, PE bags, book bags and drink bottles are being designed, although families will not be expected to buy them until they replace their child's uniform and equipment naturally.

The new uniform will not be compulsory until September.

Proud moment for Best of West award winners

Honours for health service 'champions'

Ken Morley

star@hertsessexnews.co.uk

THE winners of the first-ever Best of West health awards celebrating the dedication and motivation of individuals across the district have been announced.

The awards were presented at the annual meeting of the NHS West Essex Clinical Commissioning Group held at Harlow Leisurezone last Thursday.

The winners were chosen from a short-list of schools, volunteers and healthcare professionals from across Harlow, Epping Forest and Uttlesford, the areas for which the CCG is responsible for planning and buying health care.

The CCG invited nominations for the awards which were held to given public recognition to individuals who have had a positive impact on local communities.

Among them were George Shields from the Hamilton GP Practice in Harlow, Kelly Tarling from Rainbow Services and David Stacey and Gillian Pardoe from Church Langley Primary School.

The winners of two of the categories – the People Professional's Award and the Best Self-care Selfie – were decided by a public vote.

Congratulations

West Essex CCG chief officer Clare Morris said: "I'd like to say a huge congratulations to the winners of our first Best of West Awards and everyone who made the shortlist."

"We received some fantastic nominations which included some inspirational stories of selflessness, with people across west Essex giving up their time to support members of their community and this event was a real showcase of local efforts."

"The judging panel had an unenviable job selecting a shortlist from a lot of very strong nominations so I'm delighted each award has been presented to very worthy winners."

The awards were handed out by Stephen King and Jackie Sully, lay members of the board of West Essex CCG.

In addition, more than 25 awards were presented to people who have given 20

Harlow winners

PRIMARY CARE AWARD: George Shields (Hamilton Practice manager, Keats House Health Centre, Bush Fair)

George is a practice manager at a large Harlow practice and encourages good practice within primary care. He brings together practice managers from across the area to meet and engage in joint working and share best practice between surgeries. He is an advocate of collaboration between practices and has assisted in making GP hours available in Harlow.

BEST COMMUNITY PROJECT: Kelly Tarling (Rainbow Services)

Kelly helps communities in Harlow by listening to local people to find out what is important to them. In doing so she realised that opportunities for socialising and reducing isolation were needed in the Nettleswell area of town and set about making this happen. With the help of Harlow Council in finding a venue and local volunteers, a social club has been launched providing the community with a place to meet and socialise. A second club is also just starting.

BEST HEALTH EDUCATION: David Stacey and Gillian Pardoe (Church Langley Primary School)

David and Gillian were nominated for their work promoting sport as part of an active and healthy lifestyle. They give local children the opportunity to try new activities and develop their existing skills and confidence. Children are also encouraged to eat healthily and even the teachers do their bit, taking on physical challenges to raise money for charity.

Car that looks like a jet plane

(and it can travel as fast as one, too)

DO you like watching Formula One on the television? Then you are one of the millions of viewers who enjoy seeing racing cars being driven at speeds in excess of 200 miles per hour.

But even the fastest Formula One car would not be able to keep up with a new 44ft-long supercar which has been built to break the world land speed record.

Called the Bloodhound SSC, this amazing-looking rocket-powered vehicle is the most powerful car on the planet and cost £10m to build.

It has been created by a team of Formula One and aerospace experts with help from engineers and technicians from the Army and RAF.

The rocket system will work alongside the car's jet engine which will enable it to travel faster than the speed of sound.

Next year it will undergo tests in the UK before being taken to South Africa for high-speed testing. Then, in 2017, it is hoped it will set a new world record by reaching a speed of up to 1,000mph. The record currently stands at 763mph.

Bloodhound SSC has three separate braking systems, seven fire extinguishers and 500 sensors - twice as many as a Formula One car - so engineers will know exactly how it is performing during each run.

In addition, 12 cameras have been built into the vehicle, including two inside the cockpit so that audiences will see the same view as the driver.

"Bloodhound SSC is not just a racing car, it is also a supersonic TV studio," said one of the designers.

Cop a load of Alfie ...

Old pals croon tunes

MARTIN and Sinatra, a tribute to two great crooners, will offer the sound but also the sight, smell, taste and feel of the 1960s.

For most tribute acts, simply sounding and looking a bit like the original is enough. But Simon Baker and Martin Green will take authenticity to a whole new level when they play a hometown show in Bishop's Stortford next month.

Simon (who plays Sinatra) and Martin (who plays Martin) are childhood friends recently reunited through their double act show.

The audience will be enjoying to a two-course meal at Bishop's Stortford's The Terrace Café on Wednesday, October 21, while the pair sing the classic hits on stage and around the tables.

"They were also a very funny duo who used to mess around and tell jokes – it makes a great evening's entertainment," says Simon.

"We dress the part and have our own way of doing things. Part of the show is us slowly getting more and more drunk as the show goes on, but although we're drinking what looks like alcohol, we're sure to stay sober.

"It also incorporates bits of table magic and part of the show is about being with the audience and going through the tables.

"It was quite a difference for both of us and it was quite nerve-racking at first."

For Simon, who is best known as the afro-wigged, codpiece-wearing frontman of '70s and '80s disco band Uncle Funk, and Martin, a professional DJ, a venture into crooning seems an unusual choice.

Simon adds: "We've known each other for years and we said one day that we want to be doing something together – that was five or six years ago.

"I was inspired by Richard Cheese, an American singer who does croon versions of metal tracks, and as I tried the style myself, I found that crooning really suited my voice.

THE second career of ex-cop Alfie Moore has given the former sergeant huge success and critical acclaim.

With a now-accomplished comic career that has landed him a BBC Radio 4 show and a BBC3 TV series, Alfie's next beat will be at The Playhouse in Harlow.

Alfie will bring his tales from a life in the force to The Studio for an evening of comedy where audiences have the right to remain laughing as part of The Naked Stun UK tour.

"Fortunately for me the criminals can be wonderfully weird, which means I never need to make stuff up," Alfie explained.

"My favourites are the ones that update their Facebook status with the details of the crime they've just committed."

Eighteen years on the beat in Scunthorpe has given Alfie infinite material to work through and he has already completed two sell-out runs at the Edinburgh Fringe Festival.

However, the highlight of Alfie's show is the wonderful tale of his attempt to track down a serial flasher.

"If I could describe the show in 10 words I'd call it the true story of dogged determination to catch a serial flasher," he said.

"Some of the stories were funny at the time. Once I asked a shoplifter why she stole a L'Oréal product and she answered 'because I'm worth it'.

"But some stuff was downright scary at the time and only became funny afterwards."

The journey from policeman to funny man is not a well-trodden path – and without a background in performance Alfie has endured some weird and wonderful gigs.

"The first time I went to the Edinburgh Festival my performance space was the cellar of a bar on the outskirts of town.

"On one occasion just one fella turned up and I did the show just me and him. Anyway he never laughed or even smiled once but I just soldiered on.

But his former colleagues are very supportive of his new career path.

"They've been very supportive and I'll get cops in everywhere I perform," he added.

"The big bosses have also been good and I've been contacted by a few chief constables who enjoy my comedy and think I have a positive effect on policing.

"I left school at 15 so never thought I was clever enough to be a police officer and never gave performing a thought until I hit my 40s. Guess I'm very much a late developer."

■ Alfie Moore: The Naked Stun UK will be performed on Saturday, October 3. Tickets cost £15.50.

performed together many times and Simon feels it is right the full feel of their act is created.

The pair will perform Martin and Sinatra duets, as well as solo material and classic songs.

Simon adds: "We are together all the time throughout the show – but there will be parts when just one of us will be singing and the other will sit and pretend to smoke.

"My favourites are Fly Me To The Moon and That's Life – but there are a lot of duets."

It was a nice bit of business for the pair to strike a deal with The Terrace Café, where a meal and a performance are included for a price of £25.

However, after so long away from the scene, Simon is unsure how the audience will respond – but is sure the show offers a good value night out.

"We have no idea how it's going to go down, we will have to see, but I'm sure the audience will take to it.

"We feel it's the sort of performance that lends itself to people being sat down, restaurant style and up close."

Tickets are on sale now. Bookings can be made in person or by calling The Terrace on 01279 465924.

DODGY frontman Nigel Clark has chosen The Square as a Good Enough venue to perform in preparation for the band's new album.

Nigel will play a solo set on the same bill as fellow '90s indie kings Chris Helme, of The Seahorses, and Mark Morriss, of The Bluetones.

The three will perform their own and each others songs in a quirky gig where the running order will be decided by a game of Mario Kart.

The game will be projected onto a big screen and the audience can watch the race where the loser will have to perform first.

"I can imagine Mark beating us all at that," laughs Nigel.

"It's going to be a great laugh and I'm looking forward to giving it a go. Me and Mark used to live together and play a lot of N64."

Nigel is well acquainted with Mark and Chris, having shared a house with the Bluetones in the early 90s, but the gig on Friday will be the first time they've ever shared a stage.

"We are going to play three or four songs by ourselves and play a couple together with harmonies," said Nigel.

"We're all mates and it's nice that we can all play together like this.

"They're going to join me for In a Room," said Nigel referring to one of Dodgy's hits.

In their late 1990s peak, Dodgy were at the forefront of Britpop-mania and behind many a classic track including Good Enough, Staying Out for the Summer, If You're Thinking of Me and Found You.

Joined by drummer Matthew Priest and guitarist Andy Miller – Nigel initially played bass but has since switched to guitar, with a session and touring bassist sitting in.

With their potential as bright as their bleached hair, Dodgy were one of the UK's best known acts up until they disbanded in 2002.

When the band got back together in 2007, Nigel has admitted he's found the industry a tougher nut to crack the second time.

"We have been very lucky with the success we have had and it's never a pain to play some of the older songs when, to be honest, really I prefer playing our newer stuff.

"The band disbanded because of our problems with the music scene at the time – but things have totally changed since then and it's hard for a band like Dodgy to come back.

"No-one is investing in grass roots music any more. It's a real shame to see The Square is closing, as music needs venues like this to keep healthy.

"This is my first time playing The Square by myself, but I have played before with Dodgy and I remember meeting Steve Drewett, who was one of my heroes when I was growing up.

"I think music venues are a really part of our culture and it's hard to see our culture eroded for profit."

Nigel confirmed the trio have finished recording their currently untitled sixth LP, which is their second album since their return.

A release date is penned for around March 2016, but Nigel is facing a tough task of mixing the record with time at a premium.

"I'm currently working part-time as a music teacher, so on top of giving lectures and performing, I'll just try and do some mixing here and there when I find time.

"It has taken me three months (to do mixing so far) and it's difficult with everything on, but it's good to keep busy.

"We haven't yet agreed on an album name, but the artwork is done and the tracks are written.

"There are only three or four tracks left to mix."

Stand Upright In a Cool Place was the 2012 album that launched Dodgy's return and broke into the top 100 album chart despite a very minimal and independent release.

The new album will be given a slightly larger release but still through an independent label Cherry Red Records.

"We really want to tour this album and get back into Europe," said Nigel.

"It's not financially a massive deal, but when we reformed it was always for the love of music."

"I have written two solo albums and one was recorded, so for my own shows I play a mixture of my stuff, Dodgy songs and a few covers too," he added.

While the three will soon be back together on stage – The Square concert will be a rare occasion to see Nigel perform solo.

Throw in the added ingredients of Chris Helme and Mark Morriss plus a game of Mario Kart and you've got a recipe for a legendary evening.

■ Nigel Clark, Chris Helme and Mark Morriss will perform at The Square on Friday, October 2, with tickets £12. To book www.thesquareharlow.com/listings.

CHILLI in the sunshine

AS I write this, September is drawing to a close. I'm bleary eyed having woken up in the middle of the night to watch the super moon lunar eclipse.

These events always make you think about your place in the universe. I watched the shadow move across the moon surprisingly quickly; shivering in my PJs in the garden, I certainly didn't feel as though I was moving through space at 1,000mph and yet the evidence was before my eyes.

I realised yet again that smartphones and cameras have nothing on the human eye, as my blurry photos of the dusty-red moon will attest. I'm glad I made the effort, on such a clear night it was definitely something worth seeing. And the children were no doubt delighted to be woken up to share in the experience.

I was fairly surprised that I managed to wake up at all given how tired I was after a weekend of cooking and serving food to the thousands of visitors to Hyde Hall, just outside Chelmsford in the glorious Essex countryside.

This weekend, with its surprisingly warm weather, saw the annual chilli festival take place within the Royal Horticultural Society gardens and once again they invited me to do live cooking demonstrations for the visitors throughout the weekend, all with a chilli theme.

And there was an added bonus. During a meeting with Lara, the event organiser, she advised me that the Indian food stall from last year had unexpectedly withdrawn from the event.

I've been thinking about breaking into festival food myself and it seemed the perfect opportunity to have a go. So, with three days notice, and mainly via the power of online ordering, Saira's Bengali street food stall was up and running by 10am Saturday morning!

The menu of Chotpoti (my signature tamarind and chilli chickpea dish), chicken Jalfrezi and samosas was simple enough, but the logistics of transporting and then serving hot food in essentially a tent in a field is something else.

It was a family affair in terms of service – Jim and Tommy were there and also my chef friend Jon – and between them we cooked and served more than 400 samosas and several hundred portions of the curries.

The boys were awesome and exhausted after two days of service in addition to the mountain of prep that happens beforehand, but we left happy and with some incredibly good feedback on the food which is, of course, all that matters.

I couldn't help with service very much, as I was busy with six cooking demos over the two-day event to really great crowds in the marquee.

I shared three recipes during the demos, all inspired by the amazing chilli fruits on display grown by the RHS gardeners and from the garden centre at Battlebridge Mills, which specialises in chilli seeds and plants (tag line – the hottest gardeners in Essex!), along with the other chilli-inspired products being showcased at the festival.

There were chilli sauces and jams by producers such as Glyn Kirpalani, who owns Norfolk Heatwave featured on BBC's Countryfile, and who in a bizarre twist of fate used to work with Jim and me years ago in Heathrow immigration. It's amazing where former officers end up!

There were also spice kits and curry sauces for sale, chilli beers, chilli-inspired art, jewellery and pottery which was all flying off the shelves in the late summer sunshine.

My role as festival chef was to showcase chillies and also to give people new and fresh ideas for cooking with this amazing ingredient.

I am a huge fan of chillies and will munch away on raw green chillies alongside my curries and put hot sauce on cheese on toast. I cook with them in so many different dishes, not only Indian food.

It's not all about heat, it is absolutely about the flavour and aroma cooking with fresh chillies introduces into your repertoire. I spoke to the audience about how to deal with the range and versatility of chillies in cooking – so much depends on the chilli itself, the way you prepare them and when you introduce them into the cooking process.

This year, Alan Lodge from Battlebridge Mills had selected another fabulous range of chillies for me to cook with.

I had the gloriously named Pink Habañero (more on that later), the Super, the Santa Fe Grande, the really hot Datil and one of my personal favourites, the Hot Lemon.

There's nothing like a cocktail with samples to get a cooking demo going and for this year's choice, I wanted to channel my summer holiday experiences of Cuba and came up with a chilli mojito.

For obvious reasons, the Pink Habañero was the chilli of choice; Habañero is of course not just a type of chilli pepper, but also the word to describe a native or resident of Havana; or Habana as it is properly known in Cuba.

Having consumed rather a lot of mojitos in Cuba and paid close attention to the methods used by the bar staff, I have now developed the ultimate mojito recipe.

SAIRA'S PINK HABANERO MOJITO

Ingredients (2 servings)

Two measures (60 mls) Havana Club aged dark rum
 1 lime, cut into eighths (halves then quarters)
 1 chilli, a habañero or jalapeño, sliced lengthways through the stalk
 4 stalks of fresh mint and leaves
 2 tpsps caster sugar (or 20 mls of sugar syrup)
 Ice cubes
 Splash of sparkling water to top up

Method

1. Split the chilli lengthways. Bruise the mint stalks and leaves in your hands but don't chop them or the leaves will discolour.
2. Place the chilli and mint in a jug, or straight in the glasses. Cut the limes and squeeze some juice in to the jug before throwing the pieces in afterwards too. Add the sugar or sugar syrup and muddle together well.
3. Add in the rum and ice and mix well with a long spoon until the sugar has dissolved.
4. Top up with sparkling water then strain into a glass. Garnish with a slice of chilli.

Don't forget the longer you leave the chilli in, the hotter your cocktail will get! Fiery chilli and warming rum combined with the freshness of lime and mint. Doesn't get much better than this...

Matt's Mars mission

Ridley Scott's new sci-fi movie might boast world-class supporting actors, but Matt Damon is 'The Martian'. He tells Susan Griffin why the prospect of carrying a film left him a little nervous

Matt Damon has now been deserted by colleagues not once, but twice. There has to come a point where he thinks, 'Is it me?'

Laughing, the actor acknowledges the unfortunate circumstances his characters have found themselves in for his last two movies.

First there was Interstellar, in which he briefly appeared as one of 12 volunteers individually sent to assess the suitability of planets as a new home for the human population.

"I did that cameo because I've always wanted to work with Chris [Nolan, the director] and then I took a year-and-a-half off work," explains the 44-year-old, who's starred in The Talented Mr Ripley, the Ocean's franchise and Behind The Candelabra.

He wanted to spend more time with his wife Luciana, and four children (one daughter from Luciana's previous marriage and the three daughters they've had together) and the whole family upped sticks to California.

SURVIVAL : Damon's character has to grow crops to live on

"Then the next movie came along and I'm stranded on a planet by myself. But it was Ridley Scott, so I'm not going to say no."

The movie is The Martian, in which Damon plays Mark Watney, one of six astronauts on a manned crew to Mars that's set in the not-so distant future.

"Watney is a botanist and mechanical engineer, and is sent on the Mars mission to study and take samples of the soil, hopefully to learn more about its composition and feasibility of growing crops," explains a clean-shaven Damon.

When a fierce sand storm hits the desolate planet, he's presumed dead and left behind by the crew.

With only a meagre amount of supplies to keep him going, he has to draw upon his wit, ingenuity and spirit to subsist, and find a way to signal to Earth he's still alive.

"He has the knowledge and training to find ways to survive, but time is working against him. He believes it will likely be three to four years before the possibility of rescue," continues Damon. "In man-versus-nature scenarios, the smart money is usually on nature."

Back on home turf, millions of miles away, NASA and a group of international scientists learn of Watney's fate and work tirelessly to bring 'the Martian' home, as the world looks on.

"I did get to work with [fellow astronauts] Jessica [Chastain], Michael [Pena] and Kate [Mara] a little bit, but for the most part, it was all the other kids playing without me."

And while he does have a brilliant ensemble cast supporting him, this is Damon's movie, a prospect he found both "intimidating and exciting".

"I don't do too much calculus when I'm taking on a movie," reveals the actor.

"If I want to tell the story and I want to spend half a year of my life telling that story, and feel like the director's great, then I do it. In this case, I did pause and think, 'Wow, if this thing goes down in flames, it's all on me'."

"But it was such an uplifting, optimistic story and then there was Ridley Scott, and that's a lifelong dream for me to work with him."

Vivien Leigh's retreat

"FRANKLY my dear, I don't give a damn," asserts Rhett Butler to the wilful Scarlett O'Hara, in response to her tearful question: "Where shall I go? What shall I do?"

In real life, actress Vivien Leigh found the answer in this picturesque country hideaway, seeking refuge here after her divorce from Laurence Olivier. Leigh moved to the retreat in 1961 and it became her final resting place as her ashes were scattered over the adjoining lake when she died of tuberculosis aged 53, six years later.

Leigh was a virtually unknown English actress dating the rising star of British theatre when she secured the role in the 1939 classic Gone With The Wind, an Oscar-winning turn.

It was a glamorous showbiz marriage, but Leigh suffered from bipolar disorder and displayed increasingly erratic behaviour. After an affair with Peter Finch, she and Olivier divorced in 1960 and Leigh took up with new lover John Merivale.

She bought Tickerage Mill for £20,000 in 1961 and entertained lavishly; guests included Winston Churchill, Princess Margaret and John Gielgud. Although she kept a flat in London and continued to work on the stage, her Sussex hideaway was her true love.

The five-bedroom Grade

II-listed property, in Blackboys, East Sussex, came on the market last year for £3.5m, but has had its price cut to £3.25m.

Formerly owned by the painter Richard Wyndham, it comes with nine hectares of land and ancient bluebell wood. It has a paddock, roof terrace, lake, and Tickerage Mill Cottage, which includes a bedroom with balcony and artist's studio.

Holiday house for beach believers

FANCY owning your own church? There's one for sale as part of this truly quirky house in a stunning location, slap bang on a sandy beach.

St Gobbins Church – originally a cow byre – was built in the 1950s but converted into a church by the current elderly owner, who's spent the last 40 years lovingly creating his dream holiday home.

The church has seen many weddings and thousands of visitors; it's reportedly the smallest in Ireland, housing a tiny congregation of no more than six people and sometimes opens to the public, with donations going to charity.

The star of local Northern Irish TV programmes and a BBC show to find the Northern Ireland house of the year, The Braddan has three bedrooms and could be yours for £375,000.

Nestled in a sheltered rock face in Port Bradden on the Causeway Coast in County Antrim, a boathouse and slipway underneath leads you straight onto the beach. There's a nautical theme throughout, with bedrooms styled like cabins and curios including circular glazed side lights, originally made for the Titanic.

The back of the house was originally a mill and has been joined via the reception hallway with a stone fireplace, access to a rear yard and shower room. There's a door to the large split-level, open plan kitchen with steps up to a living room with vaulted ceiling.

Outside, winding paths lead up to a rock face with a raised viewing point and patio where you can sit and look out over the North Sea.

Agent David Menary of Simon Brien Residential said: "We've had enormous interest in the property – it's truly unique."

A home to screen dramas

THE wild, romantic setting of Casterne Hall has made it a favourite of film and TV directors.

Its grand Georgian looks have attracted a host of movies and shows over the years including Agatha Christie's Poirot, Jane Eyre, Far From The Madding Crowd and Jonathan Creek.

The Grade II-listed manor house dates from 1735, although it's on a site which has been occupied for almost 2,000 years, with sections of Roman buildings incorporated into its foundations and evidence of a vanished medieval hamlet.

Casterne Hall was even a finalist in the 2011 Country Life search for England's favourite house. Owners, the Hurt family, have lived here since the late fifteenth century, turning it into a commercial enterprise in recent years by offering team building exercises, weddings and

B&B stays, but they've now decided to sell up and their home is on the market for £3.25m.

The nine-bedroom house at Ilam in Staffordshire come with 182 acres, mainly rolling grassland divided into fields by stone walls and all set in the Peak District National Park.

A grand entrance hall with oak staircase sets the country house tone, along with an oak panelled sitting room. But there are mod cons too, with underfloor heating in a bespoke built-in kitchen which has marble worktops and a central island.

Round the back there's a stable courtyard, with stone buildings including a three-bedroom flat (let on an assured shorthold tenancy), a garden store, tack room, garages and six stables. Also outside are a range of farm buildings and vegetable garden.

Cromwell's castle goes up for sale

CORRIDORS OF POWER: Oversley Castle was owned by Thomas Cromwell, played by Mark Rylance, right, in Wolf Hall

Fans of the TV drama Wolf Hall will have the chance to live in a castle owned by the wily Thomas Cromwell, whose exploits made such gripping viewing.

Henry VIII's chief minister and advisor owned the manor of Oversley before he fell from favour, after arranging the unsuccessful marriage between the King and Anne of Cleves, and was executed in 1540 for treason and heresy.

More recent dramas at the property were of a more romantic kind, when the Prince Regent used to enjoy assignments here with the Marchioness of Hertford, wife of the Marquess of Hertford, in the 19th century. The cheeky prince asked the marquess to upgrade the castle at his own expense to make it more romantic for their liaisons.

Oversley Castle near Alcester in Warwickshire was redesigned as an Arts and Crafts home in the 1930s and is now being transformed again into 14 one- to five-bedroom properties set in 65 acres of grounds – ranging in price from £300,000 to £2m – with the new owners expected to be able to move in from next year.

The project aims to restore the castle's original appearance; a circular four-storey turret will be added to the main house, replacing a tower that was demolished back in the late 19th century.

Work has already started on the first phase – the conversion of seven period barns. Three of them are Grade II-listed, with a former threshing barn boasting a vaulted ceiling that dates back to the Tudor period. Another property is being created from a former swimming pool and is partially set into the hillside.

10 SECOND REVIEW:

The Vitara, Suzuki's latest compact crossover, aims to build a lot of talent into four metres. With a choice of petrol or diesel, front or all-wheel drive and styling that's more assured than anything Suzuki has brought us before, it looks to be a competitive proposition.

PURA VITA

TESTED Suzuki Vitara

IT'S good to see the Vitara badge being rehabilitated after the indignities it suffered at the hands of fashion in the early nineties. You'll probably shudder as you recall those wide-wheelarched horrors, usually so mercilessly colour-keyed in white that it looked as if they'd emerged from a peroxide bath.

The windsurfing or rollerblading rhino on the spare wheel cover and the booming stereo from within were all rather 'of their time'.

The easy thing to have done after suffering these ministrations would have been to quietly drop the Vitara name and think up a new badge for their next generation of compact crossovers, but Suzuki stuck with it, probably to their cost, in this country at least. As the market grew more sophisticated, Suzuki was rather left behind.

The thing is, the Grand Vitara's it subsequently built were actually pretty good. Sure, they were short of a bit of polish, but they were tough, reliable and practical. Then something happened and that something was called the Nissan Qashqai. It hogged that particular section of the market and the Grand Vitara was doomed. Suzuki's back in the crossover segment with a smaller and slicker offering. The Vitara is back.

The mechanicals aren't anything too surprising, shared as they are with the existing SX-4 S-Cross. That means buyers get to choose between either a 1.6-litre petrol engine or a much preferable Fiat-sourced 118bhp 1.6 diesel, both being offered in front or four-wheel drive guises.

The petrol engine is fitted with a five-speed manual gearbox as standard with an optional CVT transmission also offered. Go diesel and you get a six-speed manual 'box. The short overhangs will help with off-roading but the 185mm ground clearance isn't that generous.

The ALLGRIP four-wheel-drive transmission features an electronically-controlled clutch pack, controlled by a four-position switch on the centre console.

Choose 'Auto' and it'll stick to driving the front wheels unless slip is detected, whereupon the rear wheels are pressed into action. 'sport' diverts up to 20 per cent of torque to the rear wheels to give livelier handling. 'snow' offers permanent four-wheel drive with the system choosing how much torque to split front and rear, while 'Lock' splits the torque equally between front and rear.

With tight proportions and a front end that has more than a hint of current Land Rover design about it, the Vitara is quite an assured piece of design work. There's also a blacked-out floating glasshouse, heavily sculpted flanks and a very neat tail-lamp finish. Buyers can also specify a rugged package which adds front and rear skidplates as well as additional body side mouldings.

Suzuki cabins have long been the marque's weak link but this Vitara shows the company pulling its socks up a bit.

Okay, so the idea of body-coloured metal across the dash isn't a new one (many of you will recall the Fiat Coupe mining that trend way back in '93) but Suzuki also offers chrome around the gearlever and door trims, plus an analogue clock.

It's by no means a large vehicle, breaking the tape at just over four metres long, but still features a features a 375-litre boot. That's competitive with the rival Renault Captur, although the Suzuki lacks the Renault's sliding rear bench seats.

Prices start at around £14,000 for the entry-level 1.6-litre petrol version, but you'll need a £20,000 budget for the petrol ALLGRIP 4WD version. 1.6 DDiS diesel model pricing starts at around £17,000.

All variants get seven airbags, 16-inch alloy wheels, a DAB Radio with USB and Bluetooth connectivity, cruise control with a speed limiter, auto air conditioning, front and rear electric windows and projector headlamps.

The plusher SZ-T trim level adds 17-inch silver painted alloy wheels, rear privacy glass, Smartphone link audio and a navigation system. Moving up to SZ5 adds LED Projector headlights, 17-inch polished alloy wheels, suede seat fabric, keyless entry with start button, Adaptive Cruise Control, Radar Brake Support and a Panoramic sunroof.

There's a range of personalisation options and two key extra-cost packages. The 'Urban' package consists of fog lamp bezels (chrome-plated), body-side mouldings, and a roof spoiler. The 'Rugged' package delivers front and rear skid plates, fog lamp bezels, body-side mouldings and loading edge protection.

The Vitara's CO2 emissions are low thanks to the use of high tensile steel and other weight saving measures in the body plus an Engine Auto Stop Start system which shuts down the engine when stationary.

The CO2 emissions for the petrol engine with two wheel drive / manual transmission are 123g/km and 127g/km for the petrol engine with two-wheel drive / six-speed automatic transmission. Four-wheel drive is typically seen as detrimental to fuel economy and emissions performance.

By contrast, Suzuki's ALLGRIP system enables CO2 emissions that are remarkably low for a four-wheel drive SUV, with figures of 130g/km with five-speed manual transmission and 131g/km with six-speed automatic transmission.

Residual values might well stack up better than the industry average if the current crop of Suzuki models is anything to go by.

Strong reliability records and modest optional equipment lists have helped to keep 'real world' residuals buoyant. The Vitara shouldn't divert too far from that template even if it does promise additional personalisation options.

Verdict: The portents look promising for this Vitara. Pricing, after all, pitches this car against much less capable crossover models.

If you want a vehicle of this kind that's fashionable without being fake, this Suzuki might certainly appeal. For success here, Suzuki will have to contend with the usual issues, namely a small dealer network, a modest promotional budget and the vagaries of fluctuating exchange rates.

All of that can be overcome if the basic product is strong enough though – and in this case, it seems to be.

Sales of the SX4 S-Cross have been modest to date, so the company will be hoping that the look and feel of the Vitara will turn the heads of a new group of buyers. It's in there with a real chance.

Scrap Cars

Driver and Vehicle
Licensing Agency

End of the road for your vehicle?

Responsible drivers scrap their vehicles at an Authorised Treatment Facility (ATF).

Because only an ATF can legally scrap a vehicle.
That means any pollutants will be made safe before it's recycled in an environmentally friendly way.

What's more, for certain types of vehicle you'll get a DVLA approved Certificate of Destruction (CoD).
A CoD proves that the ATF has told DVLA your vehicle has been scrapped and so is no longer your responsibility. www.direct.gov.uk/motoring

Harlow second as leaders loom

East Men's Hockey League Division Six South West

Harlow ..... 4
Wapping VIII ..... 0

HARLOW are second in the Division Six South East table after a 4-0 victory against newly-promoted Wapping.

This week saw the return of experienced duo Kyle Plumridge and Stuart Kirk, plus new signing James Morris.

The game started with a sluggish tempo as Wapping had the better of the first chances, hitting a post and spurning some good opportunities with Harlow's rearguard a little jittery at the start.

Harlow found it difficult to settle into any rhythm but forced the visitors to sit deep in their own territory pressing high with good movement from the forwards.

The deadlock was broken seven minutes from half-time as neat build-up play between Joe Symonds and Ben Light allowed Cyrus Mace to gain a yard in the D and slot home under the keeper on his reverse.

Harlow came out for the second with greater ambition.

Morris rifled a ball into the D for Andrew Boughtwood to deflect home the second goal.

Harlow's third and fourth goals came via penalty corners, with Plumridge setting up Boughtwood for his second, before scoring one of his own via Kim Harvey's assist on the drag-flick, while Richard Norris's late save ensured a clean sheet.

Harlow are away to leaders Clacton this Saturday.

Hawks can plug Bath next after FA Cup win

Ex-Conference Premier side await after victory at St Ives

FA Cup second round qualifying

St Ives Town ..... 0
Harlow Town ..... 3

THE Hawks moved into the third qualifying round of the FA Cup for the first time since the 2008-09 season after a comprehensive victory at St Ives Town.

The reward for Harlow Town was a home match against former Conference Premier outfit Bath City in the next round.

Vanarama National League South side Bath represent a formidable increase in the quality of opposition, playing two levels higher than Harlow in the non-league pyramid.

Bath won 2-1 at Bodmin on Saturday.

The tie will take place at The Harlow Arena on Saturday October 10.

Harlow were professional to the last as they disposed of the Cambridgeshire-based Evo-Stik Southern League Division One Central side, who would have made club history had they won, having never before reached the third qualifying round.

But Harlow were just too strong for them.

The visitors went in front on 26 minutes with Junior Dadson's finish from an Alex Read pass.

It was 2-0 nine minutes before the break as Leon Antoine nodded in from Ryan Melaugh's cross.

The third and final goal came on 67 minutes when Read again set up Dadson who did his Ronaldo impression, bamboozling the poor St Ives defence before rifling home.

St Ives had their chances and after Harlow scored the opener, Luke Knight could only hit the crossbar with a powerful header from Harry O'Malley's cross, with Phil Draycott firing the rebound at Hawks keeper Niklas Freund.

As the half went on, the Hawks began to settle into the game and create more of an attacking threat.

Layne Eadie went close for the visitors when a deep cross from the left crept towards goal. The keeper was beaten but gratefully saw it fly centimetres wide of a post.

Unruffled

Harlow were now controlling the game, comfortable in possession and restricting the hosts to speculative shots from distance.

Ibrahima Sonko and Craig Pope in defence were unruffled, breaking down attacks before they could trouble Freund.

With 15 minutes to go, St Ives had a rare sight of goal. A corner was headed down in the box, but Eadie was on hand to hack the ensuing shot off the line and away to safety.

Harlow could have had a late fourth but Read's goal-bound header was saved well by the St Ives keeper.

TWO GOOD: Junior Dadson struck twice for Harlow Town in their 3-0 win at St Ives

Byers brilliance makes a point

Essex Hockey, Premier Div

Harlow ..... 3
Wapping III ..... 3

A LATE equaliser from Charlotte Byers secured a thrilling 3-3 draw for Harlow Ladies against Wapping.

Byers opened the scoring, finishing off from close range having started the move with a mazy run.

Wapping equalised from a well-worked short corner routine.

Harlow skipper Emma Tweddle went wide from a short corner.

Harlow regained the lead through Georgina Esterhuysen-Smith finishing from a long-range shot by Tweddle.

Wapping equalised through their speedy winger, who cut inside Sam Care and slotted a reverse stick shot past a helpless Laura Hay at her near post.

The game continued to ebb and flow.

Rowena Ricketts, making her

Wapping took the lead with less than ten minutes left to play from another short corner routine.

But Harlow dug deep and pushed forward. Strong pressing from Lara Horrax and Esterhuysen-Smith won the ball back up front and from the resulting free hit Byers dribbled the ball into the net.

The result leaves Harlow tenth in the table.

Essex County Cricket Club

Pettini off to Leicestershire

MARK PETTINI will leave Essex County Cricket Club to join Leicestershire ahead of the 2016 season.

Despite an offer to stay with the county, the 32-year-old batsman has opted to move on after being offered a three-year deal and the chance to play regularly in all three formats.

It was rumoured Pettini would be leaving after he appeared to be given a guard of honour by his team-mates as they took to the field in the match against Lancashire on Friday.

Pettini has been a loyal servant for the county since he made his debut in 2001 and mainly featured predominantly in limited overs cricket in recent years. However, Pettini made a strong return to the LV= County Championship averaging 100.50 from five matches.

Under his captaincy Essex won the Friends Provident Trophy at Lord's in 2008, and a promotion to Division One in the Championship in 2009, but he resigned from the role next season, in a bid to rediscover his own batting form.

Pettini said: "It was an incredibly hard decision to leave Essex, the place I have played my cricket since the age of 16.

"The offer from Leicestershire of a three-year contract and the chance to play regularly across all formats was something I couldn't turn down as playing red-ball cricket is something I still have a desire to do."

Everything is coming up trumps for Beard

Deal signed, England call-up and award for 17-year-old

by Matt Harris

sportsdesk@hertsandessex.co.uk

IT HAS been a week to remember for Essex County Cricket Club's newest professional, all-rounder Aaron Beard.

For just days after signing a contract that will keep the Academy graduate at the Essex County Ground until at least the end of the 2017 season, the 17-year-old was named in the ECB's England Development Programme.

And to top that off he was named the Academy player of the year at the club's end-of-season awards night.

Beard has endured a testing couple of years suffering with a double stress fracture in his back, but has put in the work to overcome injury and it looks to have paid off.

"It was a pretty surreal week," said the Great Baddow High School pupil, who won the Shepherd Neame Essex Cricket League Premier Division with Chelmsford this summer. "I've worked hard and tried to get a professional contract for a long time.

"It's overwhelming for them to stick with me, back me and let me show what I can do and for them to give me that is an amazing opportunity and I'm ready to see what happens.

"I had a double stress fracture in my lower back when I was 15. I had an operation to fix that, but it didn't work out completely, so after that I had to have another one to fix it fully.

"There was no worry really at that age, they realised how young I was. It was just about how well I could come back from that and if I could get through that injury period well."

Surprise

Beard said his selection for the England Development Programme came as a surprise but he hopes he can follow in the footsteps of fellow Essex team-mates Dan Lawrence and Callum Taylor and represent the country's U19s next summer as well as break into the county's first team.

For now he will take part in three week-long training camps between next month and February at Loughborough.

"I went to the Super Fours tournament at Loughborough and I knew a squad was going to be picked from there but because of my injury I didn't think I'd be able to get on that as I haven't bowled much this season, well as much as I'd like to have done," he explained.

"I got selected from there and I was really surprised about it.

"My biggest aim is to get myself into the first team and show off what I can do to everyone.

"That's the really good thing with Essex is they always give the youngsters an opportunity and it's good to see because it keeps you motivated."

■ Taylor and Lawrence will head to the UAE, Sri Lanka and Bangladesh over the winter with the England U19s from December to February, playing in a tri-series against Sri Lanka and India.

IPC World Athletics Championships, Doha

Athlete facing 40 degree heat

HARLOW Athletic Club member Richard Chiassaro knows the stifling heat of 40 degrees will make his job in Qatar even tougher.

While the football world has criticised the fact the World Cup will take place in the oil-rich nation in 2022, it's not the first time that athletes have had to contend with the air-sapping conditions.

"Everyone is complaining about the heat out there at the moment. But everyone has got to race on the same track and the same conditions, everyone is in the same boat," he said.

Chiassaro, 33, knows the conditions will benefit Dubai's Vahdani Mohamed.

It will be Chiassaro's first taste of the extreme heat.

"Indianapolis was hot but in Doha you are talking close to 40 degrees. When I was out in Indianapolis it was 32, so that was steaming as well," he said.

"I prefer racing in the heat because you get the better grip on the wheels. I just need to stay out of the sun."

"There are some there that are used to the conditions. You've got Leo [Pekka Tahti], the world record holder, and Kenny [van Weeghel], they are in the same boat as me. They are not used to the really hot conditions. But there's a guy from Dubai [Mohamed], and obviously he's going to be used to racing in that heat."

This week he has been working with British Athletics Institute Coach for Wheelchair Racing Jenni Banks.

Chiassaro has been coached by Banks since 2014.

"She has been awesome, she has supported me through everything," said Chiassaro.

"She has backed me 100 per cent. Not just with the racing, but everything, any advice, she's always there. Going under her coaching it has helped me massively, even with confidence."

"Jenni has been supporting me through everything. It's more about intense training and recovery under Jenni."

He will be the second Harlow athlete to compete at a World Championships in Doha.

The able-bodied 800m runner Andrew Osagie, also a Harlow AC member, competed in the 2010 World Indoor Championships.

Basketball

AIMING HIGH: Will Ashby top-scored for the Leopards

Leopards look to rebound as Rockets visit

LEVETT Essex Leopards will look to bounce back after narrow back-to-back losses over the weekend when they host Reading Rockets at the Brentwood Centre on Friday (8pm).

Steve Ogunjimi's side need a win to get their National Trophy campaign back on track after a pair of four-point defeats but face a tough test against a big-spending Rockets team.

The Big Cats had won their first nine games at the seventh place they have called home, but they came up short down the stretch against an experienced Warriors team that included former England internationals Mike Martin and Julius Joseph. It was also their first defeat under Ogunjimi after five straight wins.

Six straight points from Will Ashby put Ogunjimi's side 55-53 ahead going into the final five minutes and a basket from captain Albert Margai saw them lead by three with as many minutes remaining, but the visitors replied with a 7-0 run and never trailed again.

Ashby led the home side with 17 points, with former Warrior Justin Hitchman adding 14. Ladi Brown chipped in with 12, Margai added 11 and Tosin Oyelese again dominated the boards with 14 rebounds.

The Big Cats welcomed back Courtney Van Beest but were without Tom Martin. The next day had Leopards managing to snatch defeat from the jaws of victory as they went down 84-80 at Kent Crusaders.

Ogunjimi's team led by eight with two minutes to go but allowed the home side to score 13 unanswered and even when they had the ball with five seconds remaining and a chance to either tie or win the game, they threw it out of bounds and then allowed Jack Burnell to sink a three to seal Crusaders' win.

Leopards had led 26-10 in the first period, and took a 30-17 lead into the first break, but in common with the previous week's win at Southwark they failed to keep up their intensity.

The lead was trimmed to 45-40 at half-time and 62-58 at the final break but Crusaders scored the first six points of the fourth period. A 9-0 run capped by a pair of Margai baskets looked to have put the visitors back in control with a 74-88 lead with four minutes remaining but only Tosin Oyelese troubled the scorer again before a last second Ashby free-throw as the home side celebrated the win.

Margai led Leopards with 18 points and four assists, with Brown adding 14 and Ashby 13. Burnell, son of former Leopards' coach Jon, scored a game-high 23 points in just 22 minutes.

Chiassaro says: 'I'm in best shape of my life'

Wheelchair racer targets World Championships medal

by Alan Scott

alan.scott@hertsessexnews.co.uk

RICHARD CHIASSARO says he is in the best shape of his life as he targets a medal at the IPC World Championships in Qatar.

The Harlow Athletic Club member was called up by the British Paralympic Association last week and will make his debut at the World Championships in the capital Doha on October 21.

Chiassaro, of Seymours in Harlow, will compete in the T54 wheelchair 100 metres, 200m and 400m.

"I'm 33 but I have never been in this shape, condition or health before," he said.

"I've had some health problems with heavy training over the years, but I'm definitely in the best shape I've ever been."

Chiassaro has soared up the world rankings on the back of an incredible year.

He is ranked eighth in both the 100m and 200m, but his best time this year is just a fraction of a second off the 100m world record.

Touching distance

The top time recorded this year is 13.87sec, so Chiassaro knows he is within touching distance of a medal in the 100m.

"I know my top speed's there. I've just got to have a good start on the day. We've been working on that," he said.

"It's all paying off and it's all coming together at the right time."

"The last major competition I did was the Paralympic World Cup in 2012. This is the only big one I have been selected for. Obviously I raised the board at the [2015] US Championships."

Chiassaro trains every day at Mark Hall Sportscentre in Old Harlow and once a week at the state-of-the-art facilities at Loughborough.

Three times a week he carries out double sessions and his fitness has reached the best level of his life.

The former Mark Hall School student, who has spina bifida, will be up against world number one, Finland's Leo Pekka Tahti, in Doha.

He will compete in the 100m and 200m along with Holland's Kenny van Weeghel.

These two are the favourites for the top two medals but Chiassaro knows he is getting closer and closer to the top three.

His ultimate goal is to qualify for the 2016 Paralympic Games in Rio de Janeiro, Brazil.

"I've got another year until Rio and I've got to take point three [of a second] off [to have a realistic chance of securing the world number one spot]. I believe it's possible," he said.

"That would be to be world number one. My personal best in the 100m is 14.26 seconds and I'm up there with the top two in the world."

"This will be the [London 2012] Paralympic final athletes that I will be racing against."

"I raced all of them in Switzerland before I went to America. There's a couple I haven't beaten before, but I've come close. I came fourth overall in Switzerland so I was pleased with that."

"I'm ranked eighth in the 100m and 200m in the world, so to rank fourth in Switzerland was good."

"I'm expected to make the finals [in Doha] in the one and two [hundred] and then in the 400m I will see what I can do in it basically."

"I now need to prepare in my mind and then I'll go out there and do it."

BOSS AIMING TO HIT NEW HEIGHTS

Chapman looking to take the Hawks on an FA Cup adventure

by Stuart Ballard

sportsdesk@hertsessexnews.co.uk

HARLOW Town manager Danny Chapman is relishing their FA Cup third qualifying round tie with Bath City and isn't deterred by the challenge ahead.

A Junior Dadson brace and a Leon Antoine goal gave Harlow a 3-0 win over St Ives on Saturday to progress further in the cup.

Bath, a Vanarama National League South side, will visit The Harlow Arena on October 10 and Chapman believes his side can cause an upset with it being the FA Cup.

"It will be tough as Bath are two divisions above us and doing well, but as everyone has said on numerous occasions it's the FA Cup and anything can happen," said Chapman.

"We are at home, where we've been good, so we're looking forward to it.

"I've not looked at it and thought I wish we had got someone else because it's the FA Cup.

"If you want to progress you've got to beat whoever is put in front of you and the further you go in the competition the tougher the opponent will be.

"The publicity, the financial side of it and for everyone involved in the club it is great to be involved.

"There are loads of positives about progressing in the cups and from a personal perspective that is one thing that as a manager I've wanted to improve on."

He added: "Since I've been a manager we've not got past the second qualifying round so that's been achieved, but we need to keep progressing.

"If we beat Bath, the National League sides will come into play and if you look at the clubs in that league today most of them are former Football League clubs.

"Tranmere Rovers for example are one of those teams, so a game against one of those sides would be fantastic but we want to progress as far as we can."

Rivals

Before they can return to their FA Cup journey the following weekend they have the small matter of an FA Trophy match this weekend against Ware.

Harlow haven't lost in their last four matches against their rivals but Chapman expects a tough encounter.

"The FA Cup has been the talk of the club at the moment but right now we need to concentrate on the FA Trophy match this Saturday against Ware.

"It's a derby match so it will add a bit of spice, which will be good and we've always had good games against Ware.

"They're sitting mid-table in their division at the moment but they're a good side and we're going to have to prepare both physically and mentally for the game.

"We will approach the game as we do for every game and that's to go for the win and hopefully come five o'clock Saturday we will have exactly that."

On Tuesday night the Hawks were held to a goalless draw by Haringey Borough in the Ryman North.

Harlow were far from their best, but they came up against an inspired opposition goalkeeper in the form of former Hawk Ashley Harris, who thwarted all opportunities at goal.

Harlow had the chance to go ahead within the first minute, Shane Stamp running on to an Alex Read flick-on. Stamp's shot from six yards out was saved brilliantly by Harris, and the rebound hit Junior Dadson who couldn't direct it over the line before Harris smothered it.

Dadson went close again, a delightful chip beating the keeper only to be headed off the line by defender Rakim Richards.

Read again went close in the second half, his volley brilliantly saved with a tip over the bar.

In the dying embers of the game, Read unleashed a blistering free-kick that Harris parried and the ball was cleared.

Youth key as Harlow move into last eight

Essex Cup, last 16

Harlow Hawks . . . . . 93
Brentwood Bears . . . . . 59

HARLOW Hawks' first foray into the Essex League was sealed with an emphatic win against Brentwood Bears in basketball's Essex Cup.

Harlow went into the game with confidence, a full squad, plus a deep bench despite missing some senior players from the line up.

This meant opportunities for three U18 national league players to get some court time in the senior squad.

The first quarter was slightly nervy with few attempts and a rather low score after four minutes, 7-4 to Hawks.

The nerves were soon shaken off when Hawks went on a 6-0 run from the fifth minute, plus six points from Alex Hinds to close the quarter 19-10 to Hawks.

Effective defence from Hawks, and in particular U18 players Sam Cooper, Mubbasher Niaz and Harry Patterson, helped Hawks minimise the scoring opportunities from the Bears.

Concentration

Hawks extended their lead to 17 points by the fourth minute of the second quarter, including a three pointer from Stuart Burgess.

Back to back three pointers from the Bears saw a lapse in concentration from the Hawks, but a further 5-0 run brought the lead back up to 16.

This quarter was the highest scoring period of the match (28-21), with scoring runs coming from both teams.

Hawks remained on top throughout, with points coming in from seven different players including two three pointers from Patterson.

By the fourth quarter there was little pressure as the game was now out of reach for the Bears, and so coach Saul Friedner rotated the bench to get all players decent court time.

Rimantas Norkelinas was the outstanding player in the game and notched up 23 points for the match.

This put the Hawks through to the quarter-finals.

Hawks will be at home and face last season's Essex Cup and Division One winners, Barking-based Erkenwald, on Friday November 20 at Harlow Leisurezone.

Harlow point scorers: R Norkelinas 23, D Rozognyuk 6, S Cooper 8, M Niaz 2, A Hinds 14, T White 9, H Patterson 7, L Morris 5, M Haddow 7, R Allan 6 S Burgess 6.

Rams maintain unbeaten start

RFU London & SE Division
Three North East

Southwold . . . . . 10
Harlow . . . . . 27

A SECOND successive win – their first on the road this season – has given the Rams every reason to be optimistic this season.

Harlow got off to a great start with an early converted try. Wayne Heapy intercepted and nipped through under the posts.

Ryan McGlone converted. From a line-out, the visitors moved the ball well across the backs and winger Alastair Phillips out-paced his opposite number to finish in a corner.

A missed tackle in midfield allowed Southwold to break through the Harlow defence and score an unconverted try (12-7).

Harlow soon countered when from a line-out they made space in midfield that allowed Heapy to feed Phillips. He drew the defence and off-loaded back inside to Heapy to go over for his second try.

Early on the second half, from a line-out Southwold managed to set up a driving maul and go over for an unconverted try.

From a scrummage and a series of phases of attacking play, Harlow were able to create an overlap that allowed Phillips to go over for his second try to secure a bonus point.

A loose pass on halfway was collected by McGlone who out sprinted the defence to finish in a corner to wrap up the scoring.

Lee Harron, head of coaching at Harlow, said: "It was a good performance by Harlow, but there is still room for improvement as we will come up against sterner opposition and need to be more clinical."
